Nuclear winter predicted; call to save the Earth

By SUSAN EDMONDSON
Staff Writer

The United States is living beyond its environmental means and heading towards a nuclear winter, an environmentalist told a crowd of more than 200 Friday night.

David Brower, founder of Friends of the Earth and executive director of the Sierra Club for 17 years, spoke on the cost of growth and encouraged the audience at the Monday Club to form alliances to save the Earth.

The enthusiastic audience laughed with Brower as he criticized the Reagan administration and frequently broke out in spontaneous applause as Brower called for action to save the Earth. The event was sponsored by the Environmental Center of San Luis Obispo and the Central Coast Green Party.

"What we're doing with growth that's presently practiced is leading us directly to the nuclear winter," said Brower. "We have to do some re-thinking."

Brower explained that the United States' addiction to growth began at the close of World War II. Brower said that the question of growth is an important one that everybody needs to ask. "Now if you start questioning growth, people turn off their hearing aids."

"We are growing ourselves right off the planet. We are living beyond our environmental means. We are using environmental capital, not environmental income," said Brower.

Brower blasted the Reagan administration and its "momentary, flash-in-the-pan, apparent economic recovery." Brower said, "Everything that now looks good is on borrowed money. You can put on a hell of a party if you go and draw up all the money you have out of the bank and put that party on."

Americans consume 33 percent of the world's resources with only one-twentieth of its population and we won't give up our standard of living, he said. In order to have an equitable distribution of resources people must consider how their actions affect the earth and how they will affect the unborn future generations.

Brower said a nuclear winter is the utmost threat to life on Earth. President Reagan doesn't realize that the use of nuclear weapons would cause a "boomerang effect" that would destroy both the United States and the Soviet Union, he said.

Brower called for a new alliance of environmentalists, doctors, scientists, politicians and clergy to "find some way out."

Brower emphasized the importance of the individual in the fight to save the Earth. "There is no person here who can't make an extraordinary difference in how the world works. Don't be afraid to start another group."

David Brower, founder of Friends of the Earth, criticized Reagan's environmental policies during a speech Friday. He also called for people to form alliances in order to combat destructive forces against the environment.

Crop science prof named weed leader

By TED LEWIS
Staff Writer

A member of the Cal Poly Crop Science Department faculty has been elected secretary of the California Weed Conference and will move up to serve as president of the over-2,000 member organization in 1987.

Dr. George Gowgani, who has been active in the statewide organization for the past 17 years, was recently elected during the 37th annual conference in Anaheim.

"The conference was organized for the dissemination of new information about weed control for the members of the conference," said Gowgani. "The conference is composed of people whose main interests are weed control. These people include professors, growers, representatives in the ag chemical industry and state and county regulatory representatives."

Pest control is a very important industry. The industry involves the manufacturing and application of herbicides and pesticides and because of the growing need and the chemicals used in pest control it is complicated and well regulated industry, said Gowgani.

Gowgani explained that approximately 70 percent of the money spent on pesticides goes to purchase herbicides. The total expenditure for herbicides in America is $12 billion annually, he added.

"Chemicals are not the only answer to pest control, but it is one tool that must be used when we can use them safely," said Gowgani.

Proposed bill could limit fee increases

By DARCY SPANGLER
Special to the Daily

SACRAMENTO — Students could be guaranteed a 10 percent cap on fee increases if a proposed fee bill is passed by state legislators.

Senator Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, introduced a fee bill in January that would protect students in the University of California and California State University systems from unpredictable fee increases which have plagued the post-secondary schools over the past five years. Senate Bill 195 proposes to establish a formula to set and adjust fees, limit fee increases to no more than 10 percent per year and provide enough financial aid to offset fee increases.

If approved by legislators, the bill will become effective

Stolen permits becoming major problem at Poly

By SANDRA THORNBURGH
Staff Writer

Of the 6,678 parking permits issued for Winter Quarter, including annual and dormitory permits, more than 160 have been illegally removed making stolen parking stickers Cal Poly's number one petty theft.

Although parking permit thefts have always been a problem, an increase of students with cars, early sell-out of permits and Winter Quarter's bad weather seems to have added to the problem, said Richard Brug, director of Public Safety.

In addition, police investigators believe there may be an individual or group of people selling stolen stickers.

"There is some indication that there are a few people out there who are making money stealing and selling parking permits," Brug said. "And there's nothing worse than students ripping off students."

What most students don't realize is that if they buy or even find lost stickers and use them, they can be arrested, booked and fined up to $350 in addition to having their cars towed and impounded, said Public Safety Investigator Ray Berrett.

"The burden of proof is still upon them because the law is very specific about possession of stolen property and theft of lost property," Berrett explained. "A person has the obligation to return property to its owner or the police department," he said.

"That way, it gives the lawful owner an opportunity to look for the permit in a logical place," added Investigator Wayne Carmack. "It doesn't matter what they tell us, we are still going to get them."

In addition to the students' inconvenience, each stolen parking permit costs the Public Safety

Department, and other agencies, valuable time and money.

"The theft of a permit can cost up to $785 and 7.8 man-hours to investigate, because it requires the time of the Public Safety Department, the state cashier's office and the courts," said Berrett.

If it's a second offense, then it involves a probation officer, the District Attorney's office, and, the student could end-up doing 40 hours of community service or a weekend in jail, Berrett said.

"Just confirming that the sticker is stolen or lost consumes a great deal of time," added Parking Officer Lana Fleming. "Then we have to make a tow sheet, a supplement to the report and wait for the owner of the vehicle. By the time we complete all the reports it can take up to three hours."

Fleming, who has found a large percentage of the stolen or lost stickers, looks for anything unusual when patrolling the parking lots. "Generally, if the permit is altered or covered for any reason, there is an indication that something is out of the ordinary and I take a closer look," she explained.

One way to prevent having a parking sticker stolen is to cut an X through the permit after applying it to the bumper which causes the permit to fall apart if someone attempts to remove it, said Berrett.

Also, applying a new sticker over an old one makes it a lot easier to peel the permit off, Brug added.

"The only other alternative is to put the sticker inside the rear window where it was originally, but a lot of students don't like to put stickers in their car windows," said Brug.

The Public Safety Department is currently in the process of deciding what to do to alleviate the problem.

the governor by June," Maddy assured. "The governor has endorsed it, so that's good."

The fee policy plan was developed by representatives of student groups, the colleges, state agencies, the Office of Legislative Analyst and the Postsecondary Education Commission.

The fee policy served as a recommendation for the bill which is a negotiated compromise of these groups, said Curtis Richards, director of the California State Student Association, a lobbying group for the CSU system.

"I fully expect the policy to become law," said Richards.

"Over the last few years, fee levels at the (UC) and State University have been unstable and completely unpredictable," said Senator Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield.

Take STEPS to prevent crime

While it's impossible to eliminate crime, many steps can be taken to deter it.

Crime prevention ideas have been suggested for the campus, and the recent rape emphasizes the shortcomings of some of the existing programs.

The Mustang Daily Editorial Board thinks there is one idea definitely worth enacting that could help decrease crime on campus.

That idea is an expansion of the Escort Service to drive students that live on or near campus home. It would work with little extra manpower.

The Interfraternity Council already runs the Escort Service and the ASI Student Relations Board proposed that at night the Disabled Students Services electric tram be used to drive students to the dorms and a van be used to drive people to off-campus homes within three miles.

The program is called STEPS — Student Transportation Escort Public Service — and all that would be needed to start the program is several drivers, a van, an existing tram, money for gas/electricity and insurance.

The Public Safety Department is looking into raising money to buy a van and the Student Relations Board is trying to use an ASI van to start the program next quarter. Either way the expense of the program to students would be minimal.

Even if a small fee (25 cents) needs to be charged, it is still a small price to pay for the service.

The Mustang Daily Editorial Board thinks the ASI and IFC should get this program off the ground. Many students have no way, other than walking, to get home from night classes or the library, and this improved escort system would be a worthwhile expansion of the existing service.

We think the ASI should continue working to get the program running, and hopefully the IFC will accept the proposal. For so little cost, the profits could be enormous — a bargain that can't be beat!

Reader suggests looking further into cable TV deal

Editor:

I read with more than a passing interest the article "Cable TV and Recreational Area Planned for Dorms," which appeared in the Feb. 22 issue of the Mustang Daily.

While I understand the attraction of a cable proposal providing Home Box Office and Cinemax to the students, I question whether the students are being offered all they should be, considering the lucrative privilege that Sonic Cable Company may be given in wiring the dorms. Perhaps nothing more than entertainment programming was asked for out of innocent naivete on the part of the students, and I would like to provide a few concepts concerning cable franchising.

To begin with, are the students aware that a cable franchise is an exclusive municipal monopoly, usually for a 15 year period, for which the cable company has certain obligations to provide community communication programming? Community communication means more than the typical movies, sports programs and other entertainment similar to that available from broadcasters. Community communication means providing a voice to local cable subscribers and viewers through public access and programming of value to the community dealing with issues such as health care, education, information of interest to minority groups, the handicapped, and to other groups having various special interests. Community communication also means the provision of programs that can potentially enhance the community's cultural and social well being. In other words, community communication means the provision of programming with the intent of improving the quality of life in a municipality or within another geographic boundary encompassing a franchise area. The Cal Poly community in itself represents an area of sufficient population to justify requesting special services of Sonic Cable Company in return for exclusive access to the campus.

I recommend that the Cal Poly students do not sell themselves short resulting from a misunderstanding of cable communication services that may be available. If the subscriber community does not pursue such services, the cable company is not likely to make them known. This situation has occurred many times throughout U.S. cities, large and small over the past decade.

A cable franchise is usually so lucrative that it has often been equated with a license to print money. I recommend that before any contract is signed, the students become aware of all forms of cable programming and services that may be available, and demand the most diverse and meaningful community communication programming, along with other entertainment programming, for the privilege of a monopoly that will have a captive Cal Poly audience. For starters, I recommend that the students request, from the cable company, a fully equipped cable television studio for student access. They should also be asked to provide an interface with Cal Poly's Audio-Visual Department in order to enable the cable casting of video tapes that are often shown in classes over the campus' own closed circuit television system. This is a small price to pay for the income that the cable company is likely to receive in the years ahead from Cal Poly students.

Students respond to memorial request

Editor:

Last December, Cal Poly lost a fine individual to a car accident on an icy road. Mary Pollack left all who knew her with warm feelings and a new sense of life.

It is rare that a negative event can transpire into positive energy, but the memory of Mary motivated this rare occurrence. A memorial fund was established in Mary's name to provide emergency loans for her peers in the School of Business. This memorial has promoted well over $1,000 in donations, and the total continues to grow.

This accomplishment, in Mary's name, should bring pride to all who contributed to and/or participated in the fund raising. Thank you one and all for your efforts.

Contributions are still being accepted in the Financial Aid Office, contact Laura Dimmitt.

Crimes of Heart no crime at all

By DONALD MUNRO
Staff Writer

Imagine being able to sit down unobserved in your next door neighbors' kitchen and watch what their lives are really like.

You'd be able to see people being their real selves, without the fronts that are put on for the benefit of the outside world. You'd feel like you really knew their personality and character, and their hopes and dreams.

That's the kind of feeling you'll walk away with after you've seen "Crimes of the Heart," the Pulitzer Prize winning play that concludes its run this weekend at the Cal Poly Theatre. The play continues March 14, 15 and 16 with a special Ladies Night March 12, and Resident Hall Night March 13.

Tickets are $5 and are available at the University Union ticket office.

It's not often that a Cal Poly play is performed for more than one weekend, so for those who missed the first three performances there's still another chance to see this warm, moving and funny contemporary comedy-drama.

"Crimes of the Heart" is set entirely in the kitchen of the three Macgrath sisters, residents of a small town in Mississippi. Throughout the 2½ hour production, the audience gets to know the sisters well, from their personal problems and fears to their relationships with each other.

Playwright Beth Hanley has captured the delightful eccentricities of the sisters and the other characters in the play, and director Roger Kenvin has made them come alive on stage.

The best thing about "Crimes of the Heart," besides the excellent acting, is that the audience truly feels like they are part of the play. The audience sits on the stage in risers, which means that the front row is less than four feet from the action (it's also nice because those people in the back row don't have to worry about a tall person sitting in front of them).

What also makes "Crimes of the Heart" a delight is the acting. True standouts are Kelly Hunt (who plays Chick Boyle, a cousin of the three sisters) and Tracey Walker (Babe Botrelle, one of the three sisters).

Hunt is a delight in her portrayal of a small-town busybody who has a less than perfect relationship with her three cousins.

Jamie Jackson, who plays Lenny, the oldest sister who is afraid of becoming an Old Maid, turns in a good performance although she's a little less believable than her two sisters.

Joe Slevcove, who plays a young lawyer hired to defend Babe, is also a standout.

What's most important is that by the end of this play, the audience walks away feeling like it knows these characters and has witnessed a dramatic time in their lives. Those people on stage were real people, with real problems in a world that isn't made up of Hollywood-type endings.

It's a neat feeling, and one that's very special. "Crimes of the Heart" accomplishes it in a worthwhile way.

FEES

University fees have increased four times in the 21 months between Jan. 1982 and Sept. 1983, he added.

Fee increases have occurred during the annual budget process and in the middle of the school year without warning to students.

Conversely with fee increases, state-funded student financial aid was decreased.

Not included in the fee bill is community colleges which imposed their first fee of $50 per semester last fall. Maddy believes some of the Assembly Democrats would like to tie the community college funding issue, to which the governor is opposed, into the fee legislation to gain leverage with the governor.

The fee bill would control state fee increases, but other fee increases imposed by students will cause fees to vary between universities, said Richards. Fee increases controlled by students include union and recreation facility fees.

Maddy doesn't see this as a problem since the students have influence over those fee increases by their power to vote.

Two give Poly high hopes for nationals

Top ranked pair could help bring top ten finish

The Cal Poly wrestling team is taking lessons from Madonna.

The team spent most of the year in relative obscurity nationally, but it's about to burst on the scene as the national meet approaches.

The team suffered through a 9-13 season, the worst in the head coach's 23-year career.

The team had wrestlers out of their usual weight much of the year, but they moved down in for the Western Regional. Six qualified for the NCAA Nationals in Oklahoma City, Okla. during the regional tournament.

Hitchcock said the team could finish in the top ten in the nation.

"I'm hoping for a top twenty performance," said head coach Vaughan Hitchcock. "If everything fell into the right place, we could slip into the top 10."

The most consistent Mustang wrestlers have been Mark Tracey and Roger Sayles.

Tracey is wrestling at 190 pounds and is rated No. 8 in the country. Sayles is rated No. 5 at 177 pounds. Both, said Hitchcock, could finish in the top four in the country.

"His (Tracey) chances of being in the top four or six in the nation are excellent," said Hitchcock.

Because the team had no heavyweight, Tracey wrestled in that weight division much of the year, going 34-5-1 overall. The junior is 23-2 at 190 pounds and said the rest of his team is "peaking at the right time."

Sayles, a senior, also wrestled in a higher division, going 33-4 overall, 18-4 at 177. He lost to the No. 1 and 2 in the nation and split with the No. 4.

Sayles is confident he can place high. "I feel I could win the tournament with a good performance throughout the tournament. I've got to keep the intensity throughout the match."

The team needs to wrestle as it did in the Western Regionals to finish high in country, Sayles said. "If they wrestle like they did at regionals, we could finish in the top 15.

"It's tremendous to see how hard everyone is working this week."

In 1983 Cal Poly finished No. 9 in the nation, one point away from No. 8. It finished No. 5 in the country in 1969.

Sayles and Tracey also live together and usually work out against each other. The competition between them helped both, said Sayles.

"I think I would have done a lot better last year if he (Tracey) would have been around," said Sayles a ninth place finisher in the nation last year.

Four wrestlers give Poly outside chance at top ten

Dark horses have changed weights for tournament

While Roger Sayles and Mark Tracey are ranked in the top eight in the country, the other four wrestlers going to nationals include several dark horses head coach Vaughan Hitchcock said, that could slip into high finishes.

The other four wrestlers going to nationals are: Ernie Geronimo, Cesar Escudero, David Wood and Dan Romero.

The four have changed weight divisions for nationals, making Cal Poly somewhat untested for the meet.

Here is brief summary of the road the four took to get to nationals.

Ernie Geronimo

A junior from Arvin, he wrestled at 134 pounds until the Feb. 28 Biola Tournament, then moved down to 126. He has been improving, said Hitchcock, and has a chance to finish high in nationals.

"If he wrestles up to his full potential, he has a good chance of placing in the top twenty."

Overall he has a 23-14-1 record, 7-3 at 126. He lost to the eventual champion at the Western Regionals, finishing third.

He came to Cal Poly after winning the Junior College title at Bakersfield.

Cesar Escudero

Like Geronimo, Escudero moved down in weight class. He was 28-7-2 on the year, finishing 5-2 at 134 pounds, and Hitchcock said he has the potential to finish high in nationals.

"Cesar has the potential to go into the top four in the country," said Hitchcock. It will be matter of keeping his intensity throughout, he said.

"He never quits," Hitchcock added. "He is one of the most tenacious fighters I've got."

Behind Tracey and Sayles, said Hitchcock, Escudero probably has the third best shot at placing in the top four.

Escudero is from San Jose, transferring to Cal Poly after wrestling at San Jose State and Cuesta College.

David Wood

Injured much of the year, Wood was 4-5 at 150 pounds. He dropped down to 142 for the Western Regional, placing third with a 3-1 record at the meet.

An unknown quantity and dark horse is what Hitchcock called Wood. "If he wrestles like he did at the regionals, he could sneak in there."

It took him an average of 1:25 to pin each of his last three opponents at the regional.

Wood is from Washington and was a state junior college champion twice for Cabot College in Hayward.

Dan Romero

Even though he went 2-2 at the meet, he placed fourth and voted in the wild-card spot for nationals.

He was 24-12-1 on the year, going 14-7 at 167.

Like Wood, Romero is a dark horse, said Hitchcock. "He has unknown potential."

"He has beaten good fellows, he can rise to the occasion."

With the right draw, Hitchcock added, he could end up in the top eight.

Romero is from New Mexico and was second at the Western Regionals last year, going to the national tournament.

CONNIE ALAMS/Mustang Daily

Ernie Geronimo moved down to 134 for tournament.

Turns 40 in three weeks

Sutton will join Norris in Oakland

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — For two months, Don Sutton held to the position that he would retire if he couldn't pitch for a team within commuting distance of his Southern California home.

But Sutton, who is three weeks away from his 40th birthday and 20 pitching victories short of 300, announced on Saturday that he had changed his mind and would join the Oakland A's on Monday. The A's acquired him from the Milwaukee Brewers in a December trade.

"This isn't Burger King. You can't make it your way," pitcher Mike Norris said, comparing Sutton's position in baseball to the hamburger business.

Norris, who joined the A's on Saturday, has painted himself into a position where he must do things a certain way. If he doesn't stay away from alcohol and drugs, he'll be out of baseball.

He was unable to pitch last season because of a shoulder injury, but his arm appears to be sound again.

Under provisions of the major leagues' drug policy adopted last year, Norris will be able to play in 1985 by sticking with a strictly supervised program of treatment as an outpatient.

After his first spring workout, Norris said, "This organization has been great to me. They've invested in me, not only as far as baseball is concerned, but as a person.

"I want to pay them back."

He added, "This last little incident convinced me that I'm an alcoholic."

The career of the right-hander who won 22 games in 1980 has gone downhill since then because of arm troubles compounded by physical self-abuse. Norris went through a three-week drug treatment program at a clinic in San Diego after being arrested on Feb. 13 on suspicion of drunk driving, possession of cocaine, and possession of marijuana.

Norris had admitted to cocaine use. But, as for the night of Feb. 13, he said, "I experienced a blackout, didn't know where I went or what I did for two hours. I don't even know if I used any coke.

"I feel great now, I really do," Norris said Saturday.

In 1985, he believes, "I'll be thoroughly clean physically and mentally. I guess that will bring about appreciation for what I'm doing, something I enjoy doing immensely."

Norris added, "I'm really elated that we're getting Don Sutton. 'He's a great pitcher, a great guy, too.'"

Manager Jackie Moore hopes to have at least a few veterans in the A's starting rotation.

Younger pitchers on the staff include Chris Codioli and Mike

Warren, scheduled to pitch Monday in the exhibition season opener with Milwaukee.

The A's had talked to the California Angels about a possible trade involving Sutton, who would like to see more of his family during the baseball season, but could not make a deal.

"Maybe Don's dream will still come true," Norris said. "But I'd like to see him stay with us all year."

Cincinnati over Dodgers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dave Concepcion and Eddie Milner each knocked in two runs in leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-2 exhibition baseball victory Sunday over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jeff Russell, who hurled two scoreless innings, earned the victory. Fernando Valenzuela took the loss, giving up three first-inning runs.

The Dodgers were guilty of five errors, two in the first inning, when Cincinnati scored three runs, and three more in the ninth, when the Reds added three more.

Al Oliver had two of the Dodgers' six hits.

"AT SILICON SYSTEMS, CAREER GROWTH KNOWS NO BOUNDS."

With revenues up 150 percent over last year, Silicon Systems needs people who welcome the challenge and achievement potential which that growth represents.

People who will help us handle that growth in stride. People to join our LSI design team, one of the industry's finest. People to operate our new, highly advanced wafer fab and test facilities. People to help us define innovative IC products and open up new markets worldwide.

Finding the right individuals is crucial to corporate growth. So we challenge our employees to work at the leading edge of IC technology. We let them advance to the limits of their imagination. And we offer them superior work environments at a choice of desirable locations.

That's how we've attracted and retained the top people available — people who have propelled us to the forefront of our industry. And that's how we've built a unique company culture and esprit de corps.

Of course the rewards at Silicon Systems are commensurate with the contributions expected. Rewards in career development, job enrichment, tuition refunds, graduate degree assistance, and in a liberal package of employee benefits. Plus a stock plan that encourages employee ownership.

If we're going in a direction you'd like to go, and if you'd like to move at our kind of pace, why not get in touch?

Take two easy

Men show why they are No. 3 tennis team

By NANCY ALLISON
Staff Writer

Cal Poly showed why it's the third ranked men's tennis team, having no trouble defeating both Hayward State and Cal State Bakersfield, 7-2, on the home courts last weekend.

Against No. 8 Hayward State coach Hugh Bream felt that in order for his team to win, they would have to pull out at least one win at No. 1 or No. 2 singles, and at No. 1 doubles.

"We ended up sweeping all three," said Bream, "which made the match look lopsided."

Poly's Rob Pritzkow and Tom Salmon (No.1) upset the No.1

ranked team in the nation, Rolf Wiendenmeyer and Brian Mehmedbasich 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, and Jim Rakela and Bob Zoller destroyed Hayward's Rich Wilkenson and Bill Peters 6-0, 6-2 at No.3 doubles.

In singles, Poly's Brian Bass has won five of his last six matches, after defeating Rolf Wiendenmeyer 6-1, 7-6 at the No.1 position, while teammate Paul Landry did away with No.4 Wilkenson 6-0, 6-4.

Landry, however, injured his back in doubles and was unable to play in the next day's conference match against Cal State Bakersfield.

Bakersfield came out and won four of the first sets in the six singles matches, causing Poly coach Hugh Bream some concern.

"We have a lot of confidence and came back to win five of the six three-set singles matches... something we've been doing all year long," commented Bream.

In doubles the Mustangs captured two wins, but had a let-down at No.1 doubles when Pritzkow and Salmon were defeated by the twin team of Rich and Ron Titus.

Saturday's scheduled CCAA match against Cal State Los Angeles was cancelled due to bad weather, and will be rescheduled at a later date.

The Mustangs, who boast a 11-2 overall record, will host Swarthmore College this Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Women netters split two to lose second

By NANCY ALLISON
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly women's tennis team split a pair of California Collegiate Athletic Association matches in the Southland over the weekend.

After trouncing UC Riverside 9-0 Friday, the women netters suffered a crucial loss to Cal Poly Pomona, 7-2, the following day.

The Mustangs lost 6-3 to the Broncos earlier in the season, and were hoping to beat them this time around to ensure a possible second place finish in the CCAA.

This was the first meeting with Riverside however, and the Mustangs swept all but one match in two sets.

The only three-set match came from Cal Poly No.1 singles, Sally Russell, who overcame a first set loss to beat Riverside's Jill George 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Russell had another three-set match the next day against Pomona, but couldn't pull it out this time, losing 3-6, 6-4, 3-6 to Pat Choomngern.

Perhaps the most exciting match of the day was at No.2 singles where Poly's Laurie Magin battled for 2 hours and 45 minutes before defeating Pomona's Julie Gillespie for the Mustangs lone singles victory.

Coach Orion Yeast attributed Magin's victory to her outlasting her opponent both mentally and physically.

Meanwhile Poly's No.6 singles player Kim McCracken put forth an equally impressive effort, losing 6-4, 4-6, 4-6 to the Broncos' Melanie Long. The exciting match was tied 4-4 in the third and final set before Long pulled out the victory.

In doubles action the Mustangs played intensely, but could not muster more than one win. Poly's No.2 team, Sally Russell and Cristin Leverte turned things around after losing the first set 4-6, to beat Long and Sandra Rodriguez 6-2, 6-0 in the final sets.

Wendy Elliot and Kathy Orahoad at No.3 doubles, played well, according to Yeast, losing 7-5, 6-4 to Pomona's top two players, Choomngern and Gillespie.

The entire team put out a good effort, said Yeast. "We played really well, they just edged us out. It's not whether you win or lose, as they say, it's the effort you set forth."

The women netters, currently 4-3 in CCAA, will face tough conference opponent Cal State Bakersfield, Tuesday on the Poly courts at 1:30 p.m.
